The history of Tenuta del Priore and of the winery Col del Mondo is closely intertwined with feelings.

The never dormant yearning for the embrace to the native land, the love for pristine nature, the hills of Pescara that gently sloping down from the rows of vines to the distant urban civilization traced the dimension of the passion for those grapes that seemed to evoke a call.

Every territory has its history, ours is a poetry beyond wine.

Collecorvino | PE

The area surrounding the farm is a characteristic backdrop of rolling hills that stretch from the Apennines to the Adriatic coast. The Apennines, a rugged mountain range often covered by snow including the Gran Sasso and Maiella mountains, dominate the view to the west whereas to the east, a series of hills roll gently out to the sea.

Here the "Col del Mondo" rises among the highest of the hilltops. Here, one can find a soil rich in morainic material which gives life to an old strain of the small but highly palatable Montepulciano wine grape.
